

FMA Tour of the National Archives Museum Tuesday, March 26 at 2:15 pm

Directions for Getting to the National Archives Museum

After the Awards Luncheon on Tuesday, we will head to the National Archives Museum for a self-guided tour. FMA has a reservation time of 2:15 pm, so please plan to meet up at the Archives at that time. Be ready to go through security, so do not bring any items that may cause a problem with entrance. Bags will be checked. For more information: <https://museum.archives.gov/visit>. Chrstine Parker and Ron Gryga will lead our members from the hotel to the Metro immediately following the FMA Awards Luncheon.

The National Archives Museum is located at 701 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C.

It is awe inspiring to view the original Declaration of Independence, Constitution, and Bill of Rights, as well as a 1297 Magna Carta!

Metro

Take the Yellow Line Metro from the King Street Metro Station, across the street from our convention hotel to the Archives-Navy Memorial station – which is directly across the street from the National Archives Museum, and no more than a 5-minute walk. The fare should be $3.75 each way. You will need to purchase a SmarTrip card if this is your first time taking the Metro. SmartTrip cards cost $10 but come with $8 of fare already loaded. Allow extra time if you need to buy a SmarTrip card. See the handout at the FMA Registration Desk for further instructions on how to obtain a SmarTrip card or application on your phone.

Uber

An Uber from the hotel should take about 20-25 minutes.
